Compulsory Courses:

COURSENO:

HIS101:STATEFORMATIONINANCIENTINDIA

Lectures:60

Marks:50

Course Objectives: The course intends to impart knowledge to students about how states are formed and how they evolve into large territorial entities like kingdoms or empires. These processes are explained in the context of the ancient period of history in India, and one of the emphases is to focus on the analysis of states in terms of their origin – i.e. whether there could be alternatives to state like lineage, and, whether states originate sui generis or whether they originate from the remnants of earlier formations.

Course Outcome:

Students are expected to have knowledge of state origins, statelessness and sovereignty. So that every executive action of the modern state, whether in conceptualizing or in planning or in executing can be tested against the barometer of the similar actions or processes in the past . And to learn from the mistakes and successes of that past in building a strong, durable, prosperous and inclusive nation state.

UNIT I: Introduction to political organization till the Vedic period – Kingship in the ancient period – Gopati to Bhupati – meaning of the term Rajan-Vispatias chief – post-Vedic terms for the King.

UNIT II: Local autonomy and imperial unity – janapadas and mahajanapadas – conditions for the rise of large territorial states – treasury and coercion in the state – regular collection of land-revenue – advent of taxation and emergence of the state.

UNIT III: Structure of polity in early medieval India – chieftaincies and feudatories – political and economic changes and the bases of the early medieval state system.

UNIT IV: State and imperial ideology in South India – the Cholas and their successors – Vijayanagara.

HIS105A:SOCIAL HISTORY OF COLONIAL INDIA

Lectures:60

Marks:50

Course Objectives: This course deals with the relatively new and intellectually demanding sub-discipline of Social History. It discusses in detail certain crucial aspects of Indian society during British rule, viz., caste, tribe, labour, family, and urbanization and urbanism. A certain degree of continuity, despite changes, characterised Indian society up to the 18th century; thereafter, western colonial rule ushered in new era with revenue extraction measures, domination in trade, technological innovations, and the rule of law – all which could not but impact upon, and bring about changes in, Indian society as well.

Course Outcome: A reading of the course ought to enable students to know the basic features of Indian society, the impact of colonial rule upon them, and how it continues to impinge upon contemporary life in India.

UNIT I: Changing face of a discipline: What is society? – Social history to history of society –Competing Orientalist, Utilitarian, and Nationalist visions of past Indian society – brief overview of aspects of post-colonial Indian society.

UNIT II: Marginal communities: Caste: traditional features; colonial sociology and mobility movements; lower caste aspirations and national movement –

Tribe: validity of the concept and traditional features; changes during colonial rule and confrontation; tribes and national movement –

Labour: consciousness and the making of a working class; capital and conditions of work; organisation, protest, and national movement.

UNIT III: Family and childhood: Patriarchy and gender; social functions of the family and household roles; changes in family structure and norms during colonial rule – Childhood and children in the colonial era; modern Bengal children's literature.

UNIT IV: The city and its inhabitants: Urbanisation and urbanism in colonial India – Emergence of the metropolis of Calcutta; the mofussil centres – The 'middle class' and other classes in the new cities; their distinctive attributes and sensibilities – Aspects of elite and popular culture in the cities.

Compulsory Course:

COURSE NO:

HIS201: STATE AND ECONOMY IN COLONIAL INDIA

Lectures:60

Marks:50

Course Objectives: This course deals with the structure and policies of British colonial rule in India; it especially focuses upon colonial polity and economy which replaced traditional Indian polity and economy in a relatively short span of time. The British tended to overlook society on the subcontinent, but they certainly meant to bring about crucial changes in the political and economic spheres to extract the maximum advantage of their rule in India.

Course Outcome: A reading of the course ought to enable students to gain a comprehensive knowledge of British colonial rule and economy; this is important because post-independence, India decided to continue with the structure of polity and economy introduced by the British, though the new policies taken were divested of the harmful intent of colonialism.

UNIT I: The colonial state: Brief overview of British expansion in India –
British Parliament and the East India Company –
Structure of administration: police, judiciary, bureaucracy, army.

UNIT II: The colonial ideology: Orientalist and Utilitarian phases; paternalist attitude –
Whiteracism – Divide and rule policy – Social-cultural policies and their impact (education, tribe, caste etc.).

UNIT III: The colonial economy and its impact (1): Changing pattern of English trade – Land revenue settlements – Commercialisation of agriculture.

UNIT IV: The colonial economy and its impact (2): Decline of traditional handicrafts – Emergence of modern industries and colonial industrial policy –
Impact of railways.

HIS305B:POPULARCULTUREINBENGAL,19THAND20THCENTURIES

Lectures:60

Marks:50

CourseObjectives: This course deals with the intellectually stimulating concept of popular culture that pervades the syllabuses of the social sciences and the humanities nowadays. The closer relation of society and culture goes without saying; however, industrialisation, urbanisation, post-World War II Americanism, mass consumerism and so on have irrevocably changed the traditional cultural landscape and ushered in a distinct ‘popular’ culture. And, while this process began first in the West, colonial rule, globalisation, and a greater impact of such forces as the market and the media have made possible the proliferation of a popular culture in India too.

CourseOutcome: A reading of the course ought to enable students to identify ‘popular’ aspects of contemporary Bengali culture, the situation and the forces that brought them about, and their impact upon society at large.

Unit I: Defining popular culture, in relation to elite, mass, and folk cultures – the making of a popular culture in Bengal in modern times; globalization, internet – religious, class, gender, and regional distinctions within this culture, if any.

Unit II: Festivities: religious festivals like baaroyaari, Durga Puja, Eid, Muharram, and Christmas – social festivals for the celebration of eminent personalities like Rabindranath Tagore and Subhas Chandra Bose.

Unit III: Performing arts, literature, and entertainment: Jatra – theatre – films – radio and television – music, Rabindrasangit, Bangla Band – the evolution of a modern Bengali language, literature, and reading culture – news media and public opinion.

Unit IV: Culinary, sartorial, and physical culture: Bengali food, feasts and fasts, nutrition and health – the evolution of regional attire – akhras, Bratachari movement, football, cricket and soon.

Compulsory Course:

COURSE NO:

HIS401:SOCIAL HISTORY OF SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY

AND MEDICINE IN INDIA: COLONIAL PERIOD

Lectures:60

Marks:50

Course Objectives: This course intends to emphasize on the spread of western science in colonial India with multi-dimensional aspects and endeavours. It enables the students to understand the nature of science-related explorations, science studies and research activities by government and non-government initiatives, which were going on in varied forms during this period. It ought to enable students to study the introduction of western medicine in colonial India and also about the indigenous system of medicine, which prevailed here since long before colonial period. New technological aspects and applications in colonial India are also dealt with special attention.

Course Outcome: This course wants to make the students realize the nature and evolution of science, technology and medicine in colonial India, which inspires them to further study and research on these new emerging fields of history.

UNIT I: Colonial Science – considerations of the colonial power underpinning scientific and technological initiatives of British India – British surveys in India as colonial forms of knowledge – technology and the colonial project of India's development – Departments of Irrigation, Agriculture, Public Works, Railways – role of Asiatic Society of Bengal.

UNIT II: Western medicine in an Indian environment – colonial government, public health and state medicine – emergence of the study of tropical diseases – underpinnings of colonial power in epidemiology in colonial India – role of scientific education and technical institutions – government and private colleges – engineering and medical colleges – involvement of women in science education.

UNIT III: Nationalist science as a counter-discourse of colonial science; claim of an ancient ‘national’ scientific tradition for India; the search for ‘scientific’ texts from ‘antiquity’—Nationalist medicine: Ayurveda, Unani, nationalist adoption of Homeopathy.

UNIT IV: Nationalism and the founding of institutions and associations for scientific research – Swadeshi technology: in theory and practice – response to western science: failures and successes—modern scientific outlook and the ‘women question’.

HIS403:INDUSTRIALREVOLUTION-II:TheContinentalExperience

Lectures:60

Marks:50

Course Objectives: This course deals with the momentous phenomenon called the Industrial Revolution; while it occurred in the West, it could not but send out shockwaves to, and transform beyond recognition, all corners of the globe. India experienced a new phase with the coming of European trading companies and ensuing resultant colonial rule, both which were largely the outcome of the Industrial Revolution in Europe. Industrialisation has proved to be a lasting phenomenon, something that underpins contemporary politics, economy, and society in India and elsewhere.

Course Outcome: A reading of the course sought to enable students to know about this impactful phenomenon, its many aspects, how the ‘classic’ case of England was both replicated and replaced in the European continent, and the lessons that this holds out for us.

UNIT I: Concepts of the Industrial Revolution: theories of revolution, evolution, economic growth; 19th century industrial crises – Proto-industrialisation – Agricultural Revolution – ‘Substitution Process’ theory – Technology and the ‘latecomers’.

UNIT II: France: Conditions in the ancient regime – prospects and problems in the Revolutionary-Napoleonic Period – Restoration and the return to Protectionism – Napoleon III and his ‘booster’ policies – decline in the post-1870 period?

UNIT III: Germany: Backwardness in the German states in 1815 – Prussian imperatives; Zollverein and the railways – growth in the period 1850-1870 – Bismarck’s policies – situation up to 1914.

UNIT IV: Russia: Backwardness in the mid-19th century – Emancipation Edict and its effects – trends in the period 1860s-1870s – initiatives of Vishnegradsky and Witte – Stolypin reforms – situation up to 1914.
